IN January 1953 a short item published in "Pravda" somewhere on its back page announced that the leading G.P.U. official in the Moldavian Republic had been arrested after having been found guilty of extracting false confessions by using force against his prisoners. The item, ludicrous as it appeared, was of momentous importance. It meant the end of the big purge, or rather the signal for the arrest of the jailers. Yesterday's announcement which came in a more dramatic manner might be even more important. This time the announcement came not at the end, but at the beginning of a big purge. It might mean not more and not less than the beginning of the purge of the jailers. The first big effort to show that the Soviet regime can exist without confessions, mass purges and concentration camps - and perhaps even without thought control and the distortion of history. It might mean the liquidation of the totalitarian regime though we have the most serious doubts indeed whether this can be done. But it is no longer good to deny that the first genuine effort in that direction has been made, whatever the outcome.

STALINISM has been a theory and a practice. Great play has been made with regard to the former, which fulfills about the same function as the Emperor's new clothes in Andersen's fable. The really important thing which impressed the world about Stalinism was its practice, not its theory which remained somewhat less than formidable notwithstanding all efforts of the Kremlin's propagandists. Malenkov and his colleagues continue to pay lip service to the theory, but are trying to drop its practice. It was Stalin who ordered the physicians' trial, as it appears now. Yesterday's official announcement might have been a calculated move to show that the Kremlin is not so inflexible. Once you deviate from this tenet, once you admit a mistake, there is an end to absolute rule.

NOR should it be forgotten that the Kremlin must have known that the Communist leaders abroad would be discredited by yesterday's announcement. All our local time-honored Mikulases, Stacks and Rittins who congratulated the Kremlin on the arrest of the "terrorist doctors" who threatened their convictions in the guilt of the physicians - they have all now become the laughing stock of their respective countries.

It will be hoped that yesterday's announcement forebodes the end of the anti-Jewish and anti-Israel drive, just as recent Soviet statements and actions in foreign affairs tend to show that the Soviet leaders are really interested in Cold Peace rather than Cold War in the immediate future. Of course there are ultimate intentions, mental reservations, and secondary objectives about which more will have to be said on later occasions. But there is nothing surprising in that; the real thing is that Stalin's death has improved the chances of peace for the next few years. As for the future, it would, and as everybody seems to admit errors and mistakes nowadays we may as well add that we too have been proved wrong for the time being. In our apprehensions as to the political implications of Stalin's death and his heritage.

75 Perish as Turkish Sub Sinks in Collision

ISTANBUL, Saturday (Reuters). - Seventy-five Turkish sailors perished after the 1,526-ton submarine Dumlupinar collided with the Swedish ship Naboland and plunged 85 metres to the bottom of the sea off the West coast of Turkey. Radio Ankara said tonight that only 22 of the 97 trapped inside the submarine were alive.

One man on the sub's deck was drowned at the time of the collision. Five others on the deck were saved and taken to hospital.

The 22 men reported to be still alive were in a watertight compartment of the damaged submarine. From that compartment earlier today came a dramatic radio message: "We can survive another 24 hours."

An American destroyer arrived on the scene to attempt the rescue of the survivors after efforts to lower a diving bell by the Turkish ship, the Kurtaran, was in touch with the sub through a telephone attached to a buoy sent up by the sunken craft.

The Dumlupinar, formerly the U.S. submarine Bumper, was turned over to Turkey under the military aid programme. The Commander of the Turkish Navy, Admiral Altunhan, and National Defence Minister Kurbanoglu were at the scene directing rescue operations.

Salem Warns British: Egypt Will Sabotage

CAIRO, Saturday (UPI). - In one of his most bitter attacks on Britain, Major Salah Salem, said today that the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty was "not worth a dime." He threatened to deny Britain all wartime facilities if she does not evacuate the Suez Canal zone.

Salem, who is Naguib's agent in the Sudan, told members of the Liberation Rally at Matruh in the Nile Delta, "The treaty no longer exists. If British troops remain and we are forced to collaborate in wartime we shall blow up communication lines and bridges to prevent their using them. We will lead the people to fight against the British."

He said that the Egyptian Government would not negotiate on the evacuation of Suez unless it knew beforehand that its demands would be accepted.

Against the Professor who incidentally had never belonged to the State Department, and the build-up stunt used to denounce him brought him wide sympathy. But it was shown that Lattimore had sold and done much that was favorable to the interests of Soviet policy and that he had influenced thought in America on Far Eastern policy from his position in the highly respectable Institute of Pacific Relations. Professor Lattimore is to be investigated again in the near future; no final judgment on his peace role can yet be passed.

Although his public campaigns often make use of religious slogans, they have been widely resented on moral grounds and denounced by bishops of his own Roman Catholic Church. His current attempt to investigate alleged Communist infiltration into American universities is far more likely to prove a threat to the liberty of the mind than a useful support for the security of the State.

As the new Administration and the Republican Party take over responsibility, they too have come to realize that the secret workings of Communist agents and the subtle influence of fellow-traveling ways of thinking cannot be fought by wild and well-publicized accusations. Today McCarthy is openly opposed not only by the President and Mr. Dulles but equally by Senator Taft. His exaggerations have led him to the point where he is being charged with "solomonism" towards Communism.

Many Republican voters only remember that Joe McCarthy was the fifth of seven sons of a poor farmer who left school in his teens, but had the guts to return to school at 19 and complete a four-year course in law. His intellectual agility won him a good law degree, and by 1939 at the age of 30 he was elected a circuit judge. He served in the war with distinction as a Marine flyer.

THE WEEK IN THE U.N. Moves Toward Korean Armistice. The Delegates to the United Nations General Assembly watched last week a series of rapid developments which, in the words of Assembly President Lester B. Pearson, may be the starting point for an armistice in Korea. As the Delegates of the 60 countries broke off their meetings at United Nations Headquarters for a five-day Easter holiday, they had under study the text of a proposal by Mr. Chou en Lai, Foreign Minister of the People's Republic of China, for the resumption of peace negotiations in Korea. The statement was read out by Mr. Pearson after it was broadcast by Peking radio.

The United Nations Committee in Korea, meanwhile, disclosed that he was already making preparatory arrangements for the resumption of peace talks. General Clark's Liaison Officers, at the same time, met with their opposing numbers to make the arrangements for talks on the exchange of sick and wounded prisoners. When Mr. Chou's proposal reached United Nations Headquarters, several Delegates, among them V.K. Krishna Menon, of India, informally urged direct Assembly action on it. He formed more to bring the question out of the Commission on Korea and to New York, however, was made. The United States, meanwhile, urged that negotiations be kept in Korea. Several Delegations publicly warned against over-optimism. Observers at United Nations Headquarters, nevertheless, in the words of Assembly President Lester B. Pearson, may be the starting point for an armistice in Korea. GOVERNMENT GRANTS

Two persons I was privileged to meet in your issue of March 27, the statement by the Executive Vice-President of the Hebrew University that the University was now receiving satisfactory grants from the Government and the Jewish Agency, and was free from every sort of "financial straits". First, I refer to the University's sales. Second, now that the Government and the Jewish Agency have attended to their share there is renewed hope that they will soon do the same for the Hebrew Institute of Technology (the Technion).

The Government grant to our current budget is about equivalent to the total, and we are not so grateful as all from the Jewish Agency. Without a change in these circumstances, I am convinced that our activities and plans, both for education and for research, must be drastically curtailed both in quality and quantity.

There is, however, one issue for me as the Executive Vice-President of the Technion. It is the Government's policy of paying half of the expenses (i.e. the salary of the President of the Technion) to the Technion, and the Technion's policy of paying half of the expenses (i.e. the salary of the President of the Technion) to the Technion.

Yours, etc.
Dr. E. SALOMON

FORGOTTEN

The late Albert Kandel of Haifa was the man who voluntarily organized the blood bank for the Magen David Adom in Haifa with outstanding energy for a man of 55. No representative of the Magen David Adom was present at his funeral, and the "Hava Kadisha" took into account not his outstanding good deeds but only his ownership of a non-kosher butcher shop.
